Topic: Corporate Social Responsibility

1. If approximately 13.7% of South Africa's total population is living with HIV, and the country's population is estimated at 63 million, approximately how many people are living with HIV?
A 13.7 million
B 8.6 million
C 863,000
D 4.1 million

2. Case Study:

Ubuntu Apparel, a South African clothing manufacturer, has built a reputation for community involvement and ethical practices. Recently, the company launched a new line of eco-friendly clothing made from recycled materials. They also partnered with local schools to provide sewing and design workshops for unemployed youth. However, a whistleblower revealed that the company's financial department had failed to declare all revenue to SARS in an effort to reduce its annual tax payment.

Question:

Based on the case study, which of the following actions taken by Ubuntu Apparel is NOT an example of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)?

- A Partnerships with schools to offer skills development to unemployed youth.
B Using recycled materials to reduce the environmental impact of production.
C Failing to declare all revenue to the South African Revenue Service to lower tax obligations.
D Promoting local suppliers by sourcing raw materials from nearby communities.
3. Eskom, through its Eskom Development Foundation, supports various community upliftment initiatives. Imagine you are a business consultant advising another large utility company on developing its Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) strategy.

Based on Eskom's CSR approach, which combination of activities would best align with the goals of social and economic development in under-resourced communities?

- A Donating once-off food parcels and sponsoring music festivals in urban areas.
B Investing in long-term educational programmes, small business development, and infrastructure support in rural areas.
C Offering employee discounts and hosting internal team-building events.
D Running social media campaigns to improve public image without direct community engagement.
4. South Africa reportedly loses approximately R70 million annually due to illegal gold mining activities. If this amount represents an average monthly loss of gold revenue from 5 major provinces, and each province contributes equally to the illegal mining loss, what is the approximate monthly loss per province?
A R1.17 million
B R2.33 million
C R7 million
D R14 million

Topic: Human Rights, inclusivity, and environmental issues

5. Which South African law ensures equal treatment and prevents discrimination in the workplace?

- A The Companies Act
- B The Employment Equity Act
- C The Labour Relations Act
- D The National Credit Act

6. Which South African legislation specifically addresses biodiversity conservation, heritage resources, and the management of oceans and coastlines through an integrated environmental framework?

- A National Water Act of 1998
- B Conservation of Agricultural Resources Act
- C National Environmental Management Act of 1998
- D Marine Living Resources Act

7. Woolworths has set ambitious environmental targets to reduce its carbon footprint. Which of the following correctly describes their commitments and initiatives toward achieving net-zero carbon impact?

- A Committing to net-zero carbon impact by 2030, focusing mainly on Scope 3 emissions, and converting all delivery vehicles to hybrid models by 2025.
- B Achieving net-zero carbon impact by 2040, reducing Scope 1 and 2 emissions by 50% by 2030, and transitioning its delivery fleet to electric vehicles with over 40 EVs deployed in key regions.
- C Reducing overall carbon emissions by 30% by 2035 through investment in solar farms and limiting online orders for delivery to reduce transport emissions.
- D Achieving net-zero by 2050 by offsetting emissions through international carbon credits without changing its current delivery fleet.

8. A clothing retailer in South Africa wants to align its operations with the Bill of Rights. Match each human right below with the most appropriate way a business should evaluate its compliance.

Which of the following option sets correctly match the human right to its evaluation in a business context?

Human Rights:

1. Right to equality
2. Right to fair labour practices
3. Right to dignity
4. Right to a safe environment

- 1 → Check for equal promotion opportunities across demographic groups.
- 2 → Evaluate compliance with minimum wage laws and working hours.
- 3 → Review employee grievance procedures and respectful treatment.
- 4 → Monitor waste disposal practices and environmental impact.

- 1 → Evaluate whether wages differ unfairly across race or gender.
- 2 → Review if contracts allow unpaid overtime.
- 3 → Assess if workers are greeted respectfully by supervisors.
- 4 → Confirm that air conditioning systems are installed.

- C
- 1 → Assess if hiring policies prevent discrimination.
 - 2 → Monitor workplace safety equipment and exits.
 - 3 → Provide employees with feedback on their appearance.
 - 4 → Check recycling policies and electricity usage.
- D
- 1 → Assess if job titles are appropriately prestigious.
 - 2 → Review if workers are trained in conflict resolution.
 - 3 → Provide free uniforms to all staff.
 - 4 → Check office lighting and aesthetics.
9. A South African manufacturing company argues that the Labour Relations Act (LRA) protects workers to such an extent that it discourages investment and limits managerial flexibility.
- Which of the following criticisms provide the most balanced evaluation of this claim within the context of business operations and ethical labour practices?
- A The LRA's procedural requirements for dismissals create unnecessary red tape, but its protections also prevent exploitative practices and promote long-term workforce stability.
- B The LRA has no real impact on business operations because most employers find informal ways to manage staff without legal interference.
- C The LRA perfectly balances business - and employee interests, with no need for revision or adjustment in any industry sector.
- D The LRA unfairly favours trade unions and should be repealed entirely to allow businesses to operate more freely in a competitive market.

Topic: Team performance assessment and conflict management

10. A South African logistics company is experiencing internal conflict between the marketing and operations departments. Marketing wants to push same-day delivery promotions, while operations warns that current resources cannot support such promises. The CEO wants to resolve the conflict constructively without damaging team morale or service quality.
- Which conflict resolution strategy would be most appropriate in this situation, and why?
- A Collaboration, because finding a mutually beneficial solution that respects both departments' concerns will lead to long-term effectiveness and trust.
- B Avoidance, because ignoring the disagreement will reduce tension and allow both departments to cool down.
- C Force, because the CEO must assert authority to ensure the company meets sales targets.
- D Compromise, because both teams should make mutual concessions to achieve a workable solution.
11. A large clothing manufacturer is experiencing growing tension between workers and management over working hours and wage increases. As part of a conflict resolution team, you have been asked to design a strategy that involves a role for trade unions.
- Which of the following approaches would best use the trade union's role to manage and resolve this workplace conflict effectively?
- A Encourage employees to protest outside the workplace without formal communication.
- B Involve the trade union to facilitate structured negotiations between workers and management, ensuring that both parties are fairly represented.
- C Request trade unions to stay neutral and avoid becoming involved in disputes.
- D Replace trade union representatives with independent consultants to speed up decision-making.

12. A South African tech start-up evaluates its project teams using the following observations:

- Team A consistently meets deadlines but struggles to resolve internal conflicts.
- Team B has high attendance in meetings, but few members contribute original ideas.
- Team C has strong interpersonal bonds and celebrates milestones together.
- Team D sets clear goals and maintains open channels for sharing feedback.

Which of the following correctly matches each team with the primary team performance criterion it demonstrates or lacks?

- A Team A → Cooperation
Team B → Communication
Team C → Commitment
Team D → Contribution
- B Team A → Cohesion
Team B → Commitment
Team C → Cohesion
Team D → Communication
- C Team A → Demonstrates contribution
Team B → Demonstrates creativity
Team C → Lacks commitment
Team D → Lacks cohesion
- D Team A → Lacks cooperation
Team B → Lacks contribution
Team C → Demonstrates cohesion
Team D → Demonstrates communication

13. A facilitator designs a team-building programme for a South African corporate team. She considers the following frameworks:

1. A theory that categorises people based on how they prefer to process information, make decisions, and interact with the world.
2. A model that highlights preferred work functions such as “Reporter-Adviser” or “Controller-Inspector.”
3. A team role approach that classifies members as “Implementer,” “Plant,” or “Shaper,” based on how they contribute to team dynamics.
4. A decision-making technique focused on achieving alignment and support from all group members before action is taken.

Which set of theories or models correctly matches the descriptions above?

- A 1 → Group Consensus
2 → Belbin Role Theory
3 → Jungian Personality Theory
4 → Margerison-McCann Profiles
- B 1 → Margerison-McCann Profiles
2 → Group Consensus
3 → Belbin Role Theory
4 → Jungian Personality Theory

- C
- 1 → Jungian Personality Theory
 - 2 → Margerison-McCann Profiles
 - 3 → Belbin Role Theory
 - 4 → Group Consensus

- D
- 1 → Belbin Role Theory
 - 2 → Jungian Personality Theory
 - 3 → Group Consensus
 - 4 → Margerison-McCann Team Management

14. A leadership coach is using the MTR-i (Management Team Roles–indicator) approach to help an executive team at a Johannesburg fintech company improve performance.

She observes the following:

- The CEO prefers long-term strategy and delegation, often stepping back from direct team engagement.
- The Operations Manager is highly focused on execution, deadlines, and resource use.
- The Head of Marketing thrives in spontaneous brainstorming but struggles with process control.
- The HR Director emphasizes harmony, inclusion, and team morale.

Based on the MTR-i model, which of the following best identifies the management roles being expressed and demonstrates how the approach aligns with psychological preferences?

- A
- Chief Executive Officer (CEO) → Explorer
 - Operations Manager → Sculptor
 - Marketing → Innovator
 - Human Resources Director → Coach
- (MTR-i roles mirror Jungian preferences, mapping MBTI types to work-based roles)

- B
- CEO → Adviser
 - Operations Manager → Controller
 - Marketing → Inspirer
 - HR → Linker
- (MTR-i types are randomly assigned and loosely based on team behaviour)

- C
- CEO → Concluder
 - Operations Manager → Linker
 - Marketing → Controller
 - HR → Explorer
- (The MTR-i model assigns roles purely based on seniority within an organisation)

- D
- CEO → Linker
 - Operations Manager → Creator
 - Marketing → Adviser
 - HR → Controller
- (The MTR-i model does not consider psychological preference, only job title)

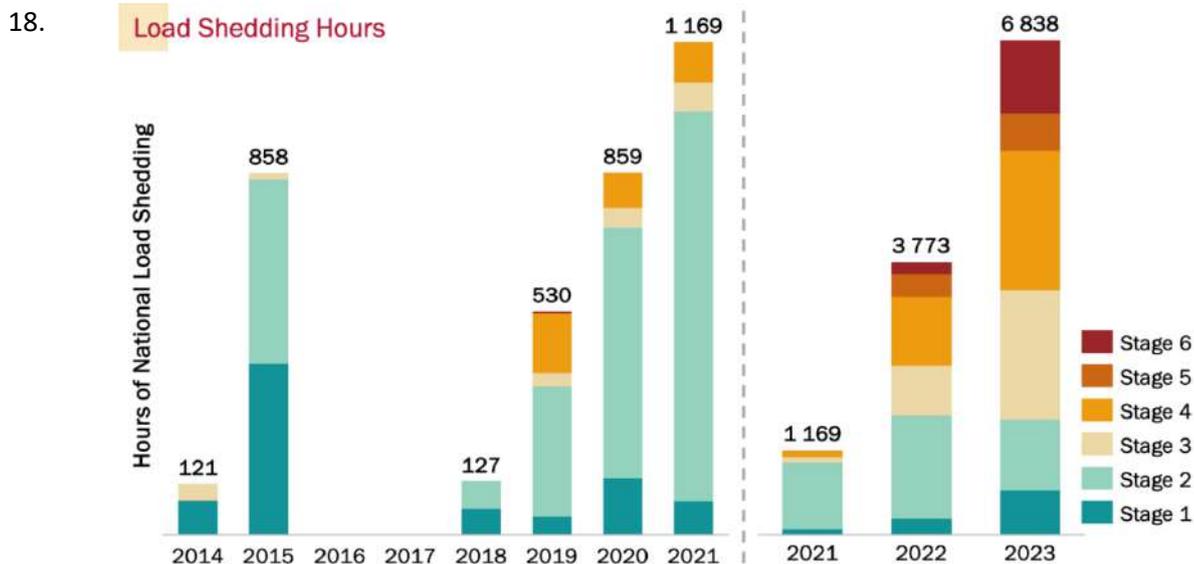

15. In a South African tech company, the product development team is falling behind schedule. Tensions rise as some team members accuse others of not pulling their weight, while others feel micromanaged. The manager frequently changes project priorities without explanation. Communication has become strained, and morale is low.

Which combination of causes best explains the conflict in this scenario?

- A Personality clashes, financial mismanagement, and external competition.
- B Outdated technology, poor teamwork, and a rigid organisational structure.
- C Poor communication, inconsistent leadership, and role ambiguity.
- D Lack of teamwork, unclear roles, and cultural differences.

Topic: Business sectors and their environments

16. Vodacom is one of the largest telecommunications companies in South Africa. Which of the following best explains why Vodacom has significant control over its micro, market, and even aspects of the macro environment?
- A It operates only in the private sector and is not affected by the public sector.
 - B Its size, financial power, and brand reputation give it influence over suppliers, competitors, consumers, and even national policy discussions.
 - C It is a monopoly and therefore does not need to follow government regulations.
 - D It focuses on customer service only, which removes the need to consider external environments.
17. A local business wants to expand internationally. What is the proposed tariff increase from the USA on imports from South Africa?
- A 30%
 - B 40%
 - C 50%
 - D 10%

Source: Eskom 2024 | Eskom se Push 2024 | NERSA 2023. Notes: Figure is separated into two and zoomed in for 2021 – 2023 for clarity.

A South African clothing retailer operates 6 days a week, 8 hours a day, for 52 weeks a year, giving a total of 2 496 working hours per year. In 2023, South Africa experienced 6 838 hours of load shedding. The retailer calculated that 25% of these hours overlapped with working hours and caused complete production stoppages.

Calculate the percentage of productivity lost due to load shedding.

- A 25.4%
- B 10.1%
- C 15.3%
- D 68.5%

19. A South African company that operates in multiple sectors is considering a strategic shift to focus on the most profitable sector for the next decade. Given current global trends such as automation, sustainability, and digital transformation, which sector is most likely to offer long-term growth and stability?

- A The quaternary sector, because innovation, data, and technology are shaping the future economy.
- B The primary sector, due to increased demand for raw materials.
- C The secondary sector, because of South Africa's industrial expansion.
- D The tertiary sector, as global economies prioritise manufacturing output.

 3. Short-term cost savings and profit increase.
 4. Possible legal consequences and compliance with labour laws.
 5. Impact on employee motivation and productivity.

22. A large government department in South Africa adopts a bureaucratic leadership style, where all employees must follow strict protocols and decision-making follows a clear chain of command. A new intern suggests a more efficient digital filing system, but the idea is dismissed because it does not align with current procedures.

Which of the following best explains the impact of bureaucratic leadership in this situation, and what could be a potential risk of maintaining this leadership style long-term?

- A The leadership style encourages employee participation but may delay decision-making due to excessive consultation.
- B The leadership style fosters creativity and initiative, but it risks losing control over operational standards.
- C The leadership style ensures consistency and order, but it may suppress innovation and adaptability in a changing environment.
- D The leadership style promotes innovation, but the refusal of new ideas may reduce employee discipline.

23. Which of the following leaders is most accurately described as demonstrating a laissez-faire leadership style, characterised by granting high autonomy and delegating decision-making authority?

- A Steve Jobs at Apple, famous for his hands-on approach and strong control over product design.
- B Herbert Hoover, recognised for his direct interventionist policies during the Great Depression.
- C Jeff Bezos at Amazon, noted for his micromanagement and strict performance metrics.
- D Warren Buffett at Berkshire Hathaway, known for empowering his managers with independence in operations.

24. A senior manager at a South African social enterprise consistently prioritises the personal and professional development of her employees. She listens actively, encourages team inputs in decision-making, and often places the needs of her team above her own. Despite tight deadlines, she allows flexible schedules to support employee well-being.

Which leadership style is most clearly demonstrated in this scenario, and what is a potential long-term impact on the business?

- A Autocratic leadership
- B Servant leadership
- C Laissez-faire leadership
- D Bureaucratic leadership

Topic: Quality of performance within business functions

25. A South African company that manufactures children's toys plans to expand into educational toy sets that also function as learning aids for schools. To ensure compliance with legal standards and to market the product as "quality assured," the company must consider multiple regulatory bodies. Which combination of actions would best align the company with all three of the following bodies: SABS, NRCS, and SAQA?

- A Register the business with the Companies and Intellectual Property Commission (CIPC), gain ISO certification, and apply for product endorsement from an academic institution.
- B Certify that the toys meet physical quality standards set by SABS, comply with safety regulations for consumer goods enforced by NRCS, and align the educational content with NQF standards under SAQA.
- C Ensure the toy materials meet national safety standards, submit the product for compulsory specification testing, and consult the Department of Basic Education on curriculum alignment.
- D Conduct market research in schools, ensure toys are environmentally friendly, and use teachers with qualifications registered with SAQA to design the educational content.

26. A South African textile manufacturer adopts the Continuous Improvement (PDCA) cycle to enhance production efficiency. After identifying delays in the fabric-cutting phase, the team redesigns the workflow and trains staff on new procedures. However, after implementation, the quality of cuts worsens, and complaints increase.

At which stage of the PDCA cycle did the business most likely fail, and what should be done next to restore quality?

- A Act – because the business moved forward without standardising successful changes, they should return to the original method.
- B Check – because the team failed to evaluate the effectiveness of the new workflow, they should collect and assess performance data.
- C Plan – because the problem was not clearly identified, the team should restart the process with a more accurate analysis.
- D Do – because the team did not implement the changes as planned, they should repeat the training phase.

27. In evaluating systemic quality control failures across major South African industries, a business analyst identifies tolerance of substandard practices, ineffective leadership, and structural system breakdowns as critical indicators of sectoral weakness. Additionally, public trust erosion is observed as a direct consequence of prolonged inefficiencies.

Which of the following sectors most accurately aligns with all of these indicators and represents a national priority concern for quality assurance bodies?

- A Healthcare sector
- B Food production sector
- C Manufacturing sector
- D Retail sector

28. You are part of a strategic task team appointed to overhaul the human capital development framework of a national logistics company in South Africa. The company aims to:

- align with national transformation goals.
- access government incentives and funding.
- ensure compliance with legislative requirements.
- equip employees with future-ready skills.

After reviewing the following options, which piece of legislation should form the primary legal foundation of the company's long-term skills development and training policy, and why, considering both legal compliance and strategic advantage?

- A Employment Equity Act (EEA), because it mandates equitable skills development for designated groups and ties non-compliance to potential disqualification from state contracts.
- B Broad-Based Black Economic Empowerment Act (B-BBEE), because it ties a company's skills development spend to their empowerment scorecard, directly influencing competitiveness in public and private tenders.
- C Skills Development Act (SDA), because it establishes the institutional framework for workplace learning, including SETAs and skills levies, and links training to national economic priorities.
- D Labour Relations Act (LRA), because it empowers collective bargaining units to influence training programmes and ensures fair labour practices during skills development restructuring.

29. A South African electronics manufacturer adopts TQM across all departments. Initially, this requires major investments in training, process monitoring, and quality audits. Over time, however, the company reports a 35% decrease in product defects, reduced warranty claims, and improved customer satisfaction.

Which of the following best evaluates the long-term impact of implementing TQM on the cost of quality, and what strategic insight does this provide for management?

- A TQM shifts all cost burdens to the appraisal stage, implying that businesses should reduce prevention efforts to achieve a faster return on investment.
- B TQM reduces overall cost of quality by decreasing external and internal failure costs, demonstrating that investing in prevention and appraisal leads to long-term savings.
- C TQM increases the cost of quality by requiring continuous training and monitoring, suggesting that management should limit quality investments to reduce overheads.
- D TQM raises both prevention and internal failure costs, indicating that the strategy is only suitable for large corporations with high profit margins.

30. Which of the following options correctly ranks the business functions from most directly to least directly involved in implementing quality control measures?

- A Human Resources, Finance, Marketing, Production
- B Production, Purchasing, Marketing, Public Relations
- C Marketing, Finance, Administration, Production
- D Public Relations, Administration, Purchasing, Finance
